WAR ON IRELAND!

PREMIER'S ADMISSION IN HOUSE OF COMMONS.

OPEN REBELLION.

SUPPRESSION OF A MURDEROUS CONSPIRACY.

LONDON, November 8.

In the House of Commons, Mr. Lloyd George, replying to suggestion made by Lord Hugh Cecil for the holding of an inquiry as to whether reprisals in Ireland were committed by authority, said that the House had expressed its opinion after hearing both sides, and that he personally was convinced that the men suffering in Ireland were men engaged in a murderous conspiracy.

Referring to the shooting of a woman, Mr. Lloyd George said that it was one of the unfortunate incidents always happening in war. (Cries of "War?" )

Mr. Lloyd George: Certainly. It's rebellion, and in every conflict of this kind innocent people are hit unintentionally.

Replying to Mr. Devlin's allegation that innocent people had been attacked, Mr. Lloyd George replied that the Government could not tamper with authorities who were putting down conspiracy, but if Mr. Devlin gave the particulars he would personally enquire into the allegations.

IRISH PARLIAMENTS DISCUSSED.

LONDON, November 8.

In the House of Commons when the Home Rule Bill was again in committee a new Government clause was adopted by 175 votes to 31 providing for the creation of second chambers for the two Irish Parliaments, but leaving the duty of framing a scheme in this connection to the Irish Parliaments. The Government originally proposed to draft the scheme itself and was to-day criticised for evading the task.

Sir Edward Carson argued that it was sufficient to provide a second chamber for the Southern Parliament only.

Sir L. Worthington Evans declared that even if the second chambers were not established the Irish Parliaments would continue to function.

A further amendment was adopted placing the responsibility of providing funds for Irish universities upon the Southern Parliament.

"A LEGISLATIVE ABSURDITY."

The Government originally proposed that candidates for election to the Irish Parliaments must take the oath of allegiance before being nominated, but in consequence of hostility to that proposal the clause was dropped and a new one providing that if the number of members validly elected was less than 50 per cent, or if the number who had taken the oath of allegiance was less than half, such a Parliament may be dissolved and its functions placed in the hands of a committee nominated by the Lord Lieutenant.

Lord Hugh Cecil declared that the clause was the greatest legislative absurdity ever suggested.

Mr. Asquith said that it forcibly illustrated the farcical character of the Southern Parliament. The contingency contemplated was certain to arise in South Ireland, which would then be reduced to the condition of the most backward of our Crown colonies.

The clause was carried by 137 votes to 11.

NO FURTHER CONCESSIONS.

Replying to the debate, Mr. Bonar Law asked what was the good of suggesting further concessions when 70 Irish members declared that they were elected to establish a republic and nothing else. The position that the Government took up was that they were prepared to give Ireland the largest measure of self-government which commended itself to the peoples of Britain and Ireland. They had to choose between that and surrendering to the extremists in South Ireland. Nothing had done such harm to a chance of settlement as the declaration by statesmen in England that they were ready to go much farther than any reasonable man in Ireland demanded. He believed that once the people of Ireland realised that Britain was in earnest in putting down crime and was not going to be driven to new schemes because of murder, they would realise that the Government was giving a very generous measure of self-government. When the Bill was on the Statute Book and ready to be carried out there would, he honestly believed, be a new situation created in Ireland.

Sir Donald Maclean said that the discussion had at least one result. They had now come to one practical and certain conclusion, namely that the Bill was dead.

AMERICAN ENQUIRY INTO OUTRAGES.

LONDON, Nov. 8.

The Foreign Office has granted passports to two inhabitants of Balbriggan and Thurles, both scenes of alleged reprisals, to proceed to New York to give evidence before the commission of enquiry into Irish outrages appointed by the New York newspaper The Nation.

THREAT TO RELEASE LUNATICS.

As a result of the refusal of the Government to pay the customary subsidies to Irish public bodies not permitting Government officials to audit their accounts, the committee of Ballinacloe lunatic asylum, unable to meet expenses, has decided to call on the relatives of 1,500 lunatics to contribute to their support. If the result is unsatisfactory, they will discharge the inmates and close the asylum.

MESOPOTAMIA.

AN INSURGENT LEADER SURRENDERS UNCONDITIONALLY.

AERIAL ACTIVITY.

LONDON, November 8.

A communique reports continued aerial activity on the Middle Euphrates against hostile gatherings south-east of Kufa in which a pilot was wounded. The leader of the insurgent forces and the majority of the sections of the most important tribes in this area surrendered unconditionally on November 4. The 53rd Brigade Column established and wired control posts around Kerbela. The town itself is quiet but some sniping occurred. The Euphrates Company sent to relieve the garrison of H. arrived on November 4. Telegraphic communication with Baghdad has been restored. That area is quiet. The 75th Brigade column reached Shahraban on November 4.

BANDIT ACTIVITIES IN MONGOLIA.

FOREIGNERS BELIEVED TO BE IN DANGER.

[BY COURTESY "HONGKONG DAILY PRESS"]

PEKING, Nov. 8.

Owing to telegraph interruptions, due to the intimidation of the staff of both the land line and wireless, the situation in Mongolia remains obscure. Though direct communication with Urga is cut off, the Government is receiving communications, indicating widespread activities on the part of bandits in the neighbourhood of the Mongolian capital, and appealing for reinforcements.

Government reports aver that the bandits are composed of Russians with a few Japanese, and also Mongolians. Several caravans have been spelled and automobiles have been commandeered. Two Americans, E. W. Mills, a mining engineer, and McLaughlin, and one British subject named Miles are believed to be in danger, and a rescue party consisting of British and Americans left Peking for Urga this morning.

THE BANQUE INDUSTRIELLE DE CHINE begs to inform the Holders of the Temporary Bonds of the CREDIT NATIONAL 1919, which have been subscribed through us, that same must be exchanged in our PARIS OFFICE for definite bonds before March, 1921.

THE PASSPORT NUISANCE.

Not lightly should anyone welcome the rise of a brand-new committee. No doubt there are good things to do, which without a committee cannot be done. But the arduous idleness of sitting round tables and moving that this or that unimportant affair be referred to a sub-committee devours the time and strength of too many men and women who, if each were shut up alone with a job, might make quite a good job of it. Committees must come, but we want him through whom a superfluous committee cometh.

This general malediction is flourished mainly in order to waive it the more pointedly in the particular case of a new committee of which Sir Martin Conway, the hero of this summer's cheapened and quickened admission to Switzerland, writes in another column. It is the Passport and Postal Reform Committee. Single-handed, Sir Martin Conway brought about the removal of all but a few insignificant strands of the barbed-wire entanglement of passport rules and charges with which the improvidence of the Swiss Government had encircled that land of attractive hotels. He blew a trumpet twice or thrice round the Alps and the defences fell. Now he has a tougher task in hand: From dealing—comparatively speaking—with lambs he is now going on, like the fearless person in Horace—or was it an animal?—to deal with reluctant dragons. At the head of the new committee, a fine body of men, he is pressing the more ferocious remainder of the nations not to entrench themselves against their friends more than they readily need.

In the days before two million Western Europeans had been killed in the vain hope of keeping the rest free, few English travellers to France, the Low Countries, Switzerland, or the Alps ever thought of getting a passport at all. Many Englishmen who had gone to the Alps or Italy every year for twenty or thirty years did not know what a passport looked like. Passports, in that Saturnian age, were becoming rather a joke. They were things that the foreign characters talked about in autumn plays at Drury Lane. They promised, it all went on well, to become like the appendix or some other demoted gland that has outlived its professional occupation in the body and only survives as an occasional nuisance. One began to feel that they belonged to the age before disinfectants or scientific quarantine. When the sagacious medieval administrator knew that every approaching foreigner might quite easily be sickening with the Black Death, and considered that the only adequate precaution, besides prayer and promises to build a church, was to make it extremely difficult for him to land. Sharing, no doubt, this sanitary instinct, the Tudor inhabitants of our Channel ports used to pursue the disembarking alien with hoots and menaces to his hotel. But for at least a century Europe had been gradually relaxing the old severities.

We may not have been quite so advanced, even in 1913, as the liberal old Homeric doctrine that "all foreigners and beggars come from God," for a dead-set, of almost the old Tudor acerbity, had been recently made against the "deserted alien," so that if a new Victor Hugo or Kosciuszko had landed at Dover with suspicious holes in his trousers and a capital of less than £5, he would have been headed back at the gangway. But if you booked first-class, and were not coming to England to do honest work with your hands, you might come; it was even a matter of modest pride among us that we had let in Louis Philippe and Louis Napoleon; Mazzini and Panizzi; Kossuth, Marx, and Kropotkin; Dom Samuel, Louis Blanc, and Tchaikovsky, all without any sort of ado, without even charging them an occasional seven and sixpence for a new visa if they should stray from county to county. The rest of Europe was gradually working towards the conclusion that in this matter we had some sense and that we had come off, if anything, rather better than they—less bombed by Anarchists as well as less overrun by such chartered vermin as the old Russian and German secret police. It was no small conquest to make over the habits of mind of States in which even a native had to have some piece of paper about him to prove his civil status, some legible proof that he was a licensed being, with due leave to continue, like an English dog.

The war has changed all that. It has inflamed each people's proprietary sense of its soil as a lawn on which to prevent the outsider from walking. It has also made all peoples—at least all the combative peoples—poor, and when you are poor you begin to think of anything which anyone else wants from you as a thing which you can sell. The Italian and French charges of 10s. and 8s. for a visa are obviously more than cost price. A shilling would cover that. In the American charge of two guineas the bearing countenance of hospitality is hardly visible at all. Even the present Swiss 5s., although a mitigation of worse things, seems somewhat tall for a country in which the entertainment of the alien is one of the two chief national industries. If we had all had distinguished success since the war in our advertised business of making our countries fit for heroes to live in, there might have been a colourable pretext for making other countries' heroes and their relations pay such high charges at the doors. As it is, we pay a good deal where we used to pay nothing, and all that we get by travelling now is a transfer from one regal seat of discord and disappointment to another.

FOUR MILES FALL.

FAULTY PARACHUTE.

LIEUTENANT'S MIRACULOUS ESCAPE.

"Extraordinary coolness and presence of mind in a parachute drop of 20,900ft. saved the life of Lieut. A. G. Hamilton when within a few yards of the ground."

Lieut. Hamilton belongs to the Army Air Service, and his thrilling fall, which is said to break all records of the kind, was made at Arcadia, Florida.

His descent of nearly four miles was made in 12 minutes. He had dropped 2,000ft. before his giant parachute opened and then to his horror he discovered that the springs which were supposed to close the air vent at the top had failed to work. As he approached the earth and surveyed the situation, he saw that he would land in a wood. There was one chance in a hundred of breaking his fall, and he took it.

Climbing up the rigging, he reached out, pulled an edge of the parachute downward, and waited for death. Through the tilting of the parachute, a rope caught on the branches of a tree. Then Lieut. Hamilton, thanking his lucky stars, slid to the earth in safety.

The aggregate sum that all the countries, between them, must lose through the hours, or days spent by their several commercial travellers in interviewing Consuls, mastering regulations, or explaining their infringement, would probably have seemed considerable in any age not accustomed to reckoning its items of avoidable waste in figures formerly confined to astronomical space and geological time. To assist in this general movement for the construction of Chinese Walls round European countries it is now proposed to double the international postage rates, so that it will cost an Englishman the present equivalent of a French franc to send a letter from Dover to Calais.

Against these dragons of international stand-offishness Sir Martin Conway and his committee propose to ride forth, and the blessing of every British traveller and merchant will attend them on the enterprise. If they do not succeed we cannot very well see where the process of making Europe impassable to the body and the mind is to stop. For, if passports are fair objects of taxation, why not make a pound on every visa instead of ten shillings? If "making the foreigner pay" is the true fiscal wisdom, why not make him pay a good lot? If people must needs have foreign correspondents, why not tax this imperfectly patriotic luxury as heavily as our true English beer? One seems already to hear these arguments of to-morrow hurrying through the air.

MARTIN'S APIOL-STEEL

THE LATEST FASHION AT HOME.

These pipes have tiny bowls, some of which are shaped like an egg or bell and hold about the amount of tobacco contained in a couple of cigarettes. Some of the women smokers like them with a plain gold band for mounting, while others favour a dainty circlet of jewels round the stem. They are about 6 inches long and weigh only 7oz.

"We have on the average 5 new customers a week," said a member of a firm which is specialising in this work "and there are many hundreds of women pipe-smokers in England. It is not a fad or a passing fashion. We blend a special kind of mild tobacco for their use—and we sell about 60lb. of it a week."

"I think one of the reasons why women are taking to the pipe is because they like to be companionable with their husbands, and they want to join him in a pipe in the evening. They find that it costs less than cigarette-smoking, too. Some of our customers are only 20, while others are as much as 50."

THE party in power, the National Party, is the survivor of a coalition formed by Mr. Hughes, the Prime Minister, in the days when the conscription controversy tore him from the bosom of Labour and flung him into alliance with his life-long opponents the Liberals, led by Sir Joseph Cook. With the war over, the bond of that union seems to grow increasingly tenuous.

"The Labour remnant that followed Mr. Hughes over conscription, and still clings to him, is apprehensive of the outcome of the next election. Meanwhile a Country party has set up for itself on a programme of justice for the rural parts of Australia, whose interests, the Country party asserts, have been sacrificed to the long ponderant political weight of the cities."

Politically and industrially Labour has gone farther in Australia than anywhere else in the English-speaking world. Repeatedly it has provided the Commonwealth Ministry and the dominant party in the Federal House of Representatives. Mr. Hughes, the present Prime Minister, is by instinct and career a Labour man, though the feud between him and political Labour, which began with his quarrel over conscription, is positively virulent.

LABOUR POLITICALLY AND INDUSTRIALLY.

"But if Labour is strong politically in Australia, industrially it seems to be even stronger. A small population of less than five millions; the vigorous development during the war of a number of local industries making commodities which could be imported no longer; the clear dependence of the country on its pastoral, agricultural, and mineral products; its compulsory reliance upon shipping both for overseas export and import and for inter-State transport—all this means an unusual dependence on Labour. So it is not surprising that Australia has developed a very elaborate legislation designed to ensure peace between employer and employee."

TRY ONE AFTER DINNER.

If you are troubled with flatulence, a sense of over-fullness, discomfort after eating, just take one Finkette after the principal meal daily for a few days and see how efficiently they remedy this condition.

Finkettes are a specific for constipation, indigestion, liver, biliousness, sick headaches, coated tongue, foul breath, pimples, and blotched skin. They are tiny but thorough—act as gently as nature. Obtainable from medicine vendors everywhere, or at 60 cents the vial from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 25 Elizabeth Street, Shanghai.

ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN.

It may be impossible to prevent an accident, but it is not impossible to be prepared for it. Chamberlain's Pain Balm is not beyond anyone's purse, and with a bottle of this liniment you are prepared for most anything. For sale by all Chemists and Storekeepers.

MOHIDEEN & CO. JEWELLERS.

33 and 40, Queen's Road Central.

Are shortly removing to No. 64 Queen's Road, Central, and to facilitate removal are disposing of their large stocks of precious stones and jewellery at exceptionally favourable prices. A splendid opportunity is offered of obtaining genuine articles cheaply.

AUSTRALIA.

DEGENERATION OF POLITICAL LIFE.

The Special Correspondent of the Times who accompanied the Prince of Wales to Australia is writing an interesting series of articles on what he saw in Australia. Australia's national individuality is a very real, he says, "even a formidable thing, but it is not at all easy for an observer from outside to define what it is. The man who makes the attempt puts his sickle, as the old writer said of theology, into a very dangerous field."

For one thing, the population of Australia is strung out over a vast area. No one here seems to have even begun to realise how very big Australia is. One or two examples may help to make it plainer.

THE ship, for instance, which brought me home started from Brisbane, the capital of Queensland, called at Sydney, the capital of New South Wales, and from there went to Melbourne, the capital of Victoria. At each port she waited, say, a day and a half, and by the time she left Melbourne she had been approximately a week on the way.

From Melbourne she went to Adelaide, the capital of South Australia, and then across the Australian Bight—a voyage of 43 days—to Fremantle, the port for Perth, the capital of Western Australia. There she left Australian waters, having accomplished already a voyage of about a fortnight. In that time she had sailed round less than a third of the coast line of Australia.

"You can avoid this long and rough sea voyage if you will, and travel by train from Brisbane to Perth, but it will take you more than a week to do it, travelling with breaks of a few hours each at the great cities—day and night."

WIDESPREAD DISMAY.

"Beyond doubt there is widespread dismay throughout Australia at the degeneration of political life, both Federal and in the State Parliaments. Politicians are thought of, and talked of, everywhere with a disconcerting contempt. It is a phenomenon familiar enough here, but it has gone even farther in Australia. And Australia is the advanced post of Democracy."

"Of course, there are reasons. Australia is suffering from the inevitable drawbacks of Federation. Melbourne, where the Federal Parliament meets, is far away from most of the constituencies. To be a member of the Federal Parliament involves sacrifices from which busy men holding responsible positions in business, or leaders of the professions, shrink. Australian political life, too, is much rougher than here." These things have their weight.

INSINCERITY OF POLITICIANS.

"But the root of the disgust for politics which afflicts Australia seems to me to be the conviction of the insincerity of politicians—men who are believed to be playing a not too honest game for their own advantage. Frankly, it is difficult to see where the possibilities of personal profit for the politician exists in Australia, but the belief that that is the usual motive of the politicians is unmistakably deep-seated and pervasive."

"Of this, offending Mr. Hughes, it seemed to me, is widely regarded as the head and front. Not that his personal integrity is impugned by responsible men; but he is believed to love power for its own sake, to ride rough-shod over constitutional restrictions, to play the game of politics for the gratification of his egotism. I may be wrong, but that I judge to be the present disposition of Australia towards her Prime Minister."

"If that is so, a revulsion of feeling is practically certain. In appearance it may seem to be, when it comes, merely dislike of Mr. Hughes and his ways. In reality its springs will be much deeper."

FAITH IN DEMOCRACY.

"The Australian may be vociferous about the failure of Parliament. He may be loud in his complaints about the inefficiency and extravagance of the bureaucracy; but his faith in democracy survives, and with it his faith in a better kind of Parliamentary government."

"Australia is proud in her heart of her leadership in the development of democratic government, believes that democracy will prove in the end to be the best system of human self-rule, and clings to the conviction that the failings of the politicians and the blunders and delays of the bureaucrats are remediable evils."

"Confusion and uncertainty rule the Federal politics of Australia."

WOMEN WHO SMOKE.

JEWELLED BRIARS.

THE LATEST FASHION AT HOME.

Yet another stronghold sacred to men has fallen before the advance of modern woman—the pipe.

For some time past the Continent has accepted the coming of the pipe women. The new fashion has now reached Britain and pipes of dainty appearance, graceful outline, and elegant proportion are now being made by experts in the West End of London.

These pipes have tiny bowls, some of which are shaped like an egg or bell and hold about the amount of tobacco contained in a couple of cigarettes. Some of the women smokers like them with a plain gold band for mounting, while others favour a dainty circlet of jewels round the stem. They are about 6 inches long and weigh only 7oz.

"We have on the average 5 new customers a week," said a member of a firm which is specialising in this work "and there are many hundreds of women pipe-smokers in England. ## CRICKET FOR FOREIGNERS.

To each race its game. It is no strange for a foreigner not to understand a foreign game. Englishmen who see in baseball only a form of the childish game of "rounders" are quite wrong, and so are the foreigners who consider cricket as a spectacle "slow." It is necessary to know a game to be interested in it, and to know it properly.
The lady who thought the change bowler very clever, because he hit the bat every time, didn't know the game properly. Sometimes we suspect that some of our sporting journalists do not know much better. When we read that a batsman "hit freely all round the wicket," we want to know what was happening. Was he just slopping, or was he cleverly placing each one? It makes a difference.The canting terminology of the game puzzles the foreigner. He learns, let us say, that three upright sticks are the wicket, which the batsman must guard, and the bowler endeavour to knock down.
Then he hears the enthusiast at his side talking of a fast wicket, or a greasy wicket, and when he asks questions, is told impatiently that the wicket means the pitch. If he be an American, he naturally thinks of the pitch as the act of the pitcher, and his confusion is worse confounded.The batsman is the defender of the wicket, and if that were his sole job, how easy it would be. A straight bat would foil all bowling. But he must get runs as well, and the fields are so placed that wherever he sends the ball it is liable to be caught, and he is "out."He must keep the balls down, when he hits them, and he must "place" them, which means driving them between two fielders, or towards some part of the field where no fielder appears. He must therefore, before watching the bowler, cast a glance round that gives him a mental map of the disposition of the fielders. This would not be so very difficult, either, if every ball came to him in the same way, but the bowler is also a tactician and will try to deceive him, by varying the speed and the "length" of his deliveries. The "length" means the distance between the bowler and the point on the ground it first touches, but for convenience it is usually thought of as the distance between that point and the bat.
If it pitches, that is, begins its bounce, too far from the batsman for him to reach out and hit it just as it is rising, or too near him for him to take it at the highest point of its bounce, it is called a "good length," and is very baffling. If he "play forward," and miss, he may be stumped. If he play back, he may hit wicket, be bowled, or at least get no run, and the field, intently watching, will have moved so as to anticipate any change of mind he may show. All this and more is visible to the interested spectator, who knows the game.
"Break," corresponding to "curve," in baseball, is another bowler's trick to deceive the batsman, and to explain it to the foreigner would take too many words, unless we defined it as the Pro. did the " Yorker." Asked what a Yorker was, he said, "Why, it's a Yorker. What else could you call it?" The batsman tries to judge pace and length with his eye, by the behaviour of the bowler, and by keeping his eye on the ball. He has to guard his wicket and watch carefully for mistakes or weaknesses by the bowler.
Most of our bats have favourite strokes, which the fielders learn and watch for, thus minimising their chances of success. Different deliveries have to be treated differ-ently, and our best bats are capable of the necessary variety and of the quick decisions necessary to apply them. "Drives" and "pulls"
and "cuts" and "glances" are not accidents, or should not be, but swifly decided treatments of balls arriving in manners requiring such treatment. Sometimes a wily bowler for a true pitch, in favour of the batsman) does not try for the wicket, but sends one to tempt the batsman, who sees that it is not "on," and "slogs" it, and is caught. In fact, if the bowler did not constantly vary his deliveries, both in pace and direction, thebatsman would master him at once, and do pretty much what he liked.Although "histories" of cricket usually attribute a venerable age to the game, it is, as we now have it, a thing of the nineteenth century, our present style of bowling being legalized as recently as 1864.Six or seven acres are advisable, but there is no legal size for a cricket ground, and the much commented on smallness of the Hongkong playing field is quite in order, so far as the laws of the game are concerned.There are ten ways in which a batsman may be got out. These are:
(1) bowled (2) caught (3) stumped (4) leg before wicket (5) run out (6) hit wicket (7) handling the ball (8) hitting it again (9) obstructing the field, and (10) disobedience or drunken ungrip.

creating Chev. G. D. Musso, the well-known Shanghai lawyer, a Commander of the Royal Order of the Crown of Italy.Yesterday Magistrate Orme again had before him the Chinese who was charged with attempted highway robbery in Morrison Gap Road on the morning of October 30 last, and with wounding Mrs.
Florence Flegg with a knife. After hearing the evidence the Magistrate committed the defendant to stand his trial at the next Criminal Sessions.The first Chinese organized race meeting ever held in North China started on Friday week last at Tientsin with no less than 51 entries for the three days and off day's racing arranged. Thirty-one races in all were on the programme, eight each on the first three days, and seven on the off day and in general the same system as obtains at the Tientsin Race Club was observed.The restriction on luxury building in London keeps projected picture theatres in limbo. When it is removed, we shall get as many as any "flapper" could desire, says the Times. Meanwhile a cinema at Ealing has added unto itself a ballroom, a smoking lounge, and a cafe.
The Chinese tea room is lighted by drum-shaped lanterns and lamps hauling from Chinese dragons, while the walls of the Jacobean restaurant are hung with armour, shields, and paintings after the Old Masters.
There are people who even now spend most of their time at the picture theatre. These extra attractions ought to save them from ever going home.The many friends of Mr. H.
Alan Taylor, Hongkong Government Monopolies Analyst, will be glad to hear that he is returning to Hongkong by the "Empress of Japan" on his next voyage. News has just been received that Mr. Taylor has sat for, and passed, the Examination for Associateship of the Institute of Food & Drugs, the first time that any candidate from Hongkong has succeeded in so doing in this particular branch. This success qualifies Mr. Taylor for appointment as a Public Analyst in Great Britain, under the Food & Drugs Acts (1875-1899) but, as indicated above, he is returning to resume his duties in Hongkong.

FOUR EYES OPEN.

ART THROUGH TINTED
SPECTACLES.

[Contributed]

The curtain rises, disclosing little Jack Horner, that distinguished "producer" of plums, in the act of announcing that no matter what others may say he is a good boy.
Those of us who have seen him often enough, especially in the nursery, are unlikely to forget this.His nurse maid admired him immensely. Dull and irresponsible to the classics, this gifted woman warmed up to Jack's creations with wooden blocks, which he had dipped in dye when the laundress was not throne. He could make a throne room that looked like a back lane behind a Chinese godown as easily as you or I could read a contributed article in the Daily Press.By pressing on its tummy he could make his punchinello squeak as he thought it ought to. Has not the learned author of "Sandford and Merton," written that sincerity of intention is the highest form of art, and colour only a side issue? With his little box of paints Jack has made green cows and blue rabbits and red elephants that brought tears of joy and pride to the eyes of Amah. Does the critic presume to say that green cows are absurd, that he could produce a brown cow that would look more natural? Let him prove it by doing it, and see how Amah likes it. She would not deign a glance at it. In some ways little Jack Horner reminds the writer, who has a soft heart, and a head to match, of the Works of Dunsany.Some people delight in both. Amah does. She prefers either to Shakespear. The writer is biased.
There's no doubt of that.
You must have noticed it.
His thoughts are elevated every time he dips into great literature like that of Lord Dunsany or Marie Corelli or Charles Garvice. So much of Isen and Shaw and Galsworthy and Henry Fielding and Euripides is not lofty in its purpose, as Dunsany and Jack Horner are. It is cheap and easy to destroy, but it is always difficult to create (with wooden blocks dipped in dye) reproductions of the imagination of other people, so that they will lift us out of thoughts of dollars to thoughts of the moral and artistic excellence of little Jack Horner, and of celestial infinity as illustrated by the pile of plums. But let us console our wounded vanity by recalling those beautiful lines by Professor Coward Kirpling:And only the snoblings shall praise us, for critics are Things of Shame,
To us who work not for money, but are greedy for local fame.Each for the fun of rehearsals, and the limelight of the stage.
Shall draw his lines as He orders, or see Him get into a rage.There is a book before the writer which was published in the U.S.A. three years ago, and is therefore and consequently a final and infallible authority. It says nothing about Dunsany, or Jack Horner, but it is to the point. The foreword reads as follows:To Edith Jane this Work is dedicated, for it was her forefinger that first pointed me to the Jasper and Opaline purity and lustre of Brigham Young, whose divine teachings drew my feet into paths of wonder and mystery and awe.Such hours in an enchanted garden of unfamiliar thought evoke one's gratitude, for the ordinary routine of life is not always beautiful in the tropics or in a Hongkong November.[This jeu d'esprit will be better understood by those who read a contributed article in this morning's Daily Press.—Ed. C.M.]

NEW CANTON LOAN.

SALT REVENUE AS SECURITY.

The leading merchants and citizens of Canton, meeting at the General Chamber of Commerce rooms on the afternoon of November 9, decided to raise a loan of $1,000,000 for the Kwangtung Government. Before the decision, Commissioner Liao Chung-hai, of the Bureau of Finance, gave a description of the needs of the Cantonese Army at the front, stating that a loan is imperative for the honour and safety of the province.The loan shall be raised in the following terms:—1, a sum of $1,000,000 at an interest of 18 per cent annually shall be raised without delay; 2, forty per cent of the loan shall be repaid at the end of four months, the rest to be repaid thirty per cent at the end of each three subsequent months with interest, full payment within a year from date of the loan; at the latest; 3, the salt revenue shall be offered as security for the loan;
and that the General Chamber of Commerce shall be agent to undertake the loan. Financial Bureau issuing notes that will be accepted as legal tender for the payment of tax and other public dues.The price of fire-wood in Canton is falling gradually, as the shipping service between the city and the East River districts has now been resumed.

PALACE HOTEL TOURNAMENT.

Last night's match in connection with the Palace Hotel Handicap Billiards tournament, resulted in Mr. A.
G. File (200) defeating Mr. W. W.
Cooper (125) by 250-114. Contrary to expectations, the match did not prove very exciting, and was won rather easily by File, whose breaks of 37, 29, 25, 21 (twice), 18 and four 15's, delighted the spectators. Cooper, who was not playing in his usual form, was able to reply with one break of 16 only.To-night Mr. W. G. Gerrard (150) plays Mr. Ho Sai-cheong (scr.) at 8.30 o'clock.

OLYMPIAD GAMES.

A POSSIBLE POSTPONEMENT.

The Far Eastern Olympiad sports which were due to take place in Shanghai this year, will probably be postponed until May next year so it is rumoured. The suggestion is said to have come from the Philippines, and China is reported as being agreeable, so that Japan will have no option but to fall in line with her Filipino and Chinese rivals. No reason has been advanced for the postponement.
The name of Dr. J. H. Gray is advanced as the probable Executive Secretary for China at the Olympiad.
He was for 13 years Physical Director of the Y.M.C.A. in India. The football, swimming, volleyball and tennis teams will be supplied by South China as usual, while North China will supply the sprinters.

RUGBY.

"AMBROSE" BEAT ARMY.

At the Happy Valley yesterday, a very interesting rugby football match was played on the Club ground between the "Ambrose" team and a XV picked from the Army.In the first moiety the Army were all over their opponents. At half time, with the scores reading: Army 13; "Ambrose" 6, it looked as if the sailors were in for a severe beating. In the second half, however, their combination improved. They turned the tables on the soldiers, scoring 16 points to their opponents' 3, and came out winners at the final whistle by 22 points to 16.The "Ambrose" opened the game with their backs to the sun, and were very soon in enemy territory, where Gordon just missed getting over the line. After alternate attacks in which some fine tackles were witnessed, Haliley ("Ambrose") registered a try, which, however, did not materialise. The reverse spurred the Army to do their best, with the result that the "Ambrose's" lead was short-lived, Murray scoring a try and succeeding in converting.Soon afterwards Beech set the "Ambrose" men going, and a try by their right winger again placed them in the lead. After this, the play was all Army's. They converted another try, and just before half time, Emmerson performed a nice piece of individual play which resulted in the Army left winger scoring a try from a beautiful pass.
Murray took the kick and made no mistake. Half time came with Army 13; "Ambrose" 6.The sailors opened out more at the resumption, and combining well, soon had the soldiers in difficulties.
South put the "Ambrose" score three-up by scoring an unconverted try. A few minutes later the "Ambrose" assumed the lead through their right winger adding five to their score by registering a try and converting.They kept the lead after this and Gunn increased it by scoring five points bringing the scores to 19-13 in favour of the "Ambrose." The Army were by no means out of the running, for very soon Emmerson led a rush, which came very near scoring. South scored another try for the "Ambrose" bringing their total to 22, before the soldiers again scored through Murray, who after a fine piece of individual play, passed to the wing forward who romped home with a try. This was not converted, and the Army total was increased by three points, bringing it to 16. With only a few more minutes to go, the Army played all they knew, but did not score again, and lost a hard fought game by 22 points to 16.

CHOLERA WARNING.

CASES IN HONGKONG.

OUTBREAK IN CANTON.

At the fortnightly meeting of the Sanitary Board yesterday afternoon, Dr. W. W. Pearce called attention to the fact that several imported cases of cholera exist in Hongkong, and warned the public that it would be advisable to take certain precautions against the spread of the disease.Preceding the regular business of meeting, Dr. Pearce made this statement:To-day's edition of the daily return of infectious diseases has mention of two cases of cholera. There is another case to be reported to-morrow.
These three cases two have undoubtedly been imported. The third case was that of a person with no fixed abode here, and probably therefore was imported. It seems fairly certain that cholera exists in Canton or its environs. We must therefore expect cases of this disease to occur in Hongkong, as cases in the incubative stage of infection may come to the Colony and infectious material may be imported in fresh vegetables. Fortunately we in Hongkong start our dry season with full reservoirs and there is no need for people to obtain drinking water from questionable sources. As,
however, no system of water supply is automatically absolutely safe, I recommend to the public that all drinking water be boiled. Vegetables should not be eaten uncooked. Fruits which grow on trees and are peeled at table before being eaten are probably safe. I do not anticipate a serious epidemic of cholera here, but if the outbreak in Canton and its neighbourhood assumes dangerous proportions we must be prepared for cases in this Colony. Safety lies very much in domestic supervision.The Hon. Mr. W. Chatham presided at the meeting. Besides Dr.
Pearce, the others present at the meeting were Dr. F. M. G. O'Zorio, Messrs. S. W. Tso, Chow Shou-sun, and C. M. W. Reynolds (Secretary).

A FAMILY TANGLE.

WIFE AND HUSBAND IN COURT.

GUTIERREZ BOUND OVER.

Magistrate Smith yesterday afternoon heard the case in which Jose Maria Gutierrez of Mosque Street was summoned by his wife Flora Labour Gutierrez, of Robinson Road, on four counts of (1) assault, (2) using insulting and abusive language, (3) trespass into her house, and (4) damaging property; and by Joaquim Bernardo on two counts of (1) assault, and (2) using abusive and insulting language.Mr. D. H. Blake appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. G. K. Hall Brunton for the defence.Mr. Blake informed his Worship that he understood Mr. Brunton would plead guilty on certain points.Mr. Brunton said he did not admit assault, but as regards trespassing, he said, it might be a technical offence. Mrs. Gutierrez was his client's wife. Possibly insulting language might have been used. The damage to Mrs. Gutierrez's property consisted of the smashing up of a Bower pot, which was done after his client had been assaulted. The whole thing was purely a trivial matter, originating over domestic trouble that had been going on for some time.Mr. Smith said he had the deed of the separation of Gutierrez, defendant.
It had been carefully drawn up.Mr. Brunton said that with reference to trespassing there might have been a certain amount of justification in which his Worship should take into consideration. There was a stranger in the house in Mr. Bernardo, and it was apparent why his client went there. Mr. Brunton added that everybody would be satisfied if his Worship bound both parties over.Mr. Blake said he could not agree to that. If Mr. Brunton had not made the insinuation he would probably have accepted defendant's plea. There was the question of assault outstanding and if defendant did not plead guilty he would have to proceed with the case.
From the facts of the case there was no doubt that defendant went to Mrs.
Gutierrez's house and assaulted both his clients and had to be ejected from the building.Mr. Smith then read part of the deed of the separation, and at the conclusion said: It is waste of time to go

ARMED ROBBERY

FIVE MEN CHARGED.

CASE ADJUDGED.

Five Chinese were this morning brought before Magistrate Orme and charged with being concerned with another man, not in custody, in an armed robbery at No. 213, Queen's Road East, at 4 a.m., on November 1, when clothing, jewellery and money valued at $156, was stolen.

Mr. C. H. Lyson appeared on behalf of Mr. Leo d'Almeida, to defend the fifth defendant, and asked for a week's remand, explaining that he had only just been retained, and wanted time to receive instructions.

Inspector Willis said that such a long remand would cause hardship to the witnesses for the prosecution, who were poor people from the country, and were living in boarding houses pending the hearing of the case.

The Magistrate fixed Tuesday afternoon for the hearing of the case.

GOLF CLUB SAFE.

UNSUCCESSFUL ATTACK.

THREE CAUGHT IN THE ACT.

Inspector Caygill of Yaumatei Police Station this morning charged a golf caddy, employed by the U.S.R.C., with breaking into the Club pavilion at 1 a.m., on Tuesday, with intent to commit robbery.

The defendant admitted the offence. The Inspector told the Magistrate that the No. 1 "boy" of the Club, who slept on the premises with several other boys, was awakened by a noise in the room where the Club safe was kept. He went there to investigate, and finding a window pane broken, called up the other servants to surround the pavilion. Sergeant Fraser, who was passing at the time, was attracted by the commotion. He found the table lamp on the floor in front of the safe. A mirror had been taken down from the wall to prevent the light from being reflected through the window, a piece of wire was found in the lock of the safe. Another piece of wire was found on top of the safe, and on the window sill were discovered a wrench and three keys. A search of the room led to the discovery of the defendant hiding behind a table. Defendant's right hand was found to have been cut, presumably by putting it through the window pane, and on the window sill were found traces of blood.

The Magistrate passed sentence of six months' hard labour.

KINEMA NOTES.

Those who visit the Coronet to witness the unique photo-play "Back to God's Country," will be repaid by seeing one of the most remarkable achievements in motion pictures yet accomplished.

Nell Shipman, the swimming girl of the Canadian wilds, who is the heroine of the story, portrays her part with the aid of such beasts of the forest as bears, wolves, mountain lions, raccoons, etc., and this truly remarkable use of different varieties of wild animals, produces some of the most thrilling scenes ever filmed.

Apart from the fact that it is a production entirely different from the majority of photo-plays, it has the distinction of having been made farther north than any other picture in the history of cinematography, some of the scenes being taken on the far shore of Lesser Slave Lake, north of the 56th parallel.

HONGKONG THEATRE.

"Down to earth"—a five-reel comedy by Douglas Fairbanks, in which he himself takes the leading part, is now being shown at the Hongkong Theatre. The picture is being shown until Friday night. Professor Paul is continuing his display of skill in thought reading.

"A BIT SILLY."

SUICIDE ATTEMPTED.

MAGISTRATE'S ADVICE TO MARRIED WOMAN.

Inspector Fox, of the Kowloon City Police Station, this morning charged a Chinese woman before Magistrate Orme with attempting to commit suicide by hanging herself with a piece of rope.

The defendant admitted the offence. The Inspector asked that the Magistrate order the defendant to undergo medical observation.

The Magistrate: Why? Do you think she is quite right "up there," your Worship?

Replied to the Magistrate, the Inspector said that the defendant told him that the reason she attempted to take her own life was because her husband was absent in Swatow, and her brother and sisters-in-law had neglected her, and would not give her anything.

The Magistrate: She is not dangerous?—No, quite harmless.

The Magistrate: She looks a little depressed. Is there any particular sign of insanity about her?—No.

The defendant's sisters-in-law who were called, informed the Magistrate that the defendant had come with them from the country not long ago.

Refugees. They could safely return now, and they were prepared to take the defendant back with them.

The defendant: I don't want to go back. You have threatened to murder me.

The sisters-in-law denied this, and informed the Magistrate that the defendant was "a bit silly," and occasionally had fits of depression.

Otherwise she was quite all right.

The Magistrate: You must humour her and not let her get depressed.

To Inspector Fox: I don't think it would improve the defendant's state of mind to place her under observation. I think she should go back to her relatives.

Inspector Fox agreed.

In discharging the defendant, the Magistrate told her that everyone must have a happy day. When she had a bad day, she should look on the better side of things and not despair. He advised her to return to her relatives and not seek death again.

THEATRICALS.

H. B. WARING COMPANY.

COMING VISIT TO HONGKONG.

The H. B. Waring English Repertory Company, which is at present touring India, will visit this part of the world about the beginning of the year. Judging by reports it seems to be a particularly strong combination, embracing several of London's greatest artists. Added to this Mr. Waring has been fortunate in securing some very fine plays, including some of the latest London successes. The company, which comprises about sixteen members, is acknowledged one of the finest English company of its kind ever to visit the East. So far the tour has been a series of successes, and returns are being played in most of the leading cities, even after an original run of six and eight weeks. Further particulars will be announced later.

CAUGHT WITH THE BOOTY.

THIEF ARRESTED.

TWO MONTHS' IMPRISONMENT.

Before Magistrate Orme this morning, Inspector Caygill charged a Chinese with the theft of 35 pieces of clothing from No. 80, Wengnam Lane.

This man pleaded "guilty."

The Inspector said that the defendant was arrested last night on the U.S.R.C., ground by one of the servants who saw him crawling through the bushes with a bundle in his hand.

In view of the previous night's attempted robbery in the Club pavilion, the servant detained the defendant while the police were sent for.

Subsequently, from enquiries made, it was discovered that the clothing was the property of a woman living at No. 80, Wengnam Lane, who had gone out leaving the door of her flat unlocked.

Sentence of two months' hard labour was passed.

SHROFF WANTED.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT.

GANDE, PRICE &amp; CO. SEEK WARRANT.

Mr. W. E. Crocker, of Messrs. Gande, Price and Co., Wine and Spirit merchants, this morning applied at the Central Police station for a warrant for the arrest of the Company's shroff who is alleged to have absconded with $4,100 which he had collected from customers on behalf of the firm.

WHAT THE KING WANTS YOU TO DO TO-MORROW.

The following telegram has been received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies dated the 6th November, 1920:

His Majesty the King has expressed a wish that on the Armistice Day, 11th November, there should be a complete suspension of all normal business and locomotion throughout the British Empire during the 2 minutes' silence commencing at 11 a.m.

As a result of an enquiry into the alleged irregularities of the State Comptroller's office, Mr. Justice Kernochan has ordered the Comptroller, Eugene M. Travis to be committed before a grand jury under the statute relating to the payment of fraudulent claims. Mr. Justice Kernochan based his finding on the payment of $2,000,000 by New York City for bonds which were sold to the State at $89.50 when the market price was only $82. It is alleged that the overpayment amounted to $140,000.

SALE OF TIN PLATES.

HEARING CONTINUED.

RIGHT TO REJECT DISPUTED

Hearing of the suit of J. H. Van Gempen Luhrs, trading as The Holland Pacific Trading Company, against Fung Tang, for a claim of $4,829.80 arising out of an alleged breach of contract, was continued this morning in the Supreme Court before Acting Chief Justice Gomperz.

The contract in question covered the purchase by the plaintiff from the defendant of 1,000 cases of the tin plate at $12 a case. The plaintiff alleges that the defendant sought to deliver goods that were damaged by water. Eight hundred cases that had been transferred from the defendant's godown, which he refused to receive back, were sold at auction by the plaintiff. The remaining 200 cases were left on the defendant's hands.

The case of the plaintiff was closed this morning by Mr. Drummond, instructed by Messrs. Dennys and Bowley, with the presentation of evidence giving in detail the sequence of the transaction and the examination made for the plaintiff to determine the condition of the goods.

For the defendant, Mr. Pollock, instructed by Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist, emphasized these two points:
whether the plaintiff was entitled to reject the tin plates, and whether, if he was entitled to reject, he did not preclude himself from rejection by his action in selling the 800 cases.

It was the claim of the plaintiff that the goods the defendant sought to deliver were not merchantable under the description of tin plates. Mr.

Pollock submitted that the terms
"merchantable" and "saleable" were interchangeable, and that the goods in question obviously were saleable, as at the auction of the 800 cases, "with all faults" a price of $10.50 was obtained, and at a second auction of the remainder of the goods more than three months later, during which time, according to the witnesses for the plaintiff, the goods would have deteriorated, a price of $11.50 a case was realized.

Mr. Pollock took the position that the examination of the goods on which the plaintiff acted was not sufficient to justify him in rejecting the goods.
He quoted the expert who made the examination as testifying that if it had been a case of assessing damages, he would have inspected 10 per cent. of the boxes, but that for purposes of rejection an examination of 2 1/2 per cent. of the boxes was sufficient.
This he characterized as "absurd and unreasonable."

He submitted that a survey of the balance of the goods made by another firm, three and one-half months after the rejection, revealed that less than one per cent. of the tin plates were damaged. Forty boxes were opened. In four of these boxes 38 of the 448 sheets they contained were more or less damaged; the remainder of the boxes were in good order, except for the lining, which was slightly rusted. It was important, he said, not only that the examination disclosed such small damage, but that it was disclosed three and one-half months after the rejection by the plaintiff.

Judgment was reserved.

THE INTERPORT.*SINGAPORE SECOND INNINGS.*BATTING COLLAPSED.*HONGKONG STILL HOPEFUL.

Davies followed and found Brown very difficult to play. Nearly all the runs continued to be made on the off and 50 only went up after 50 minutes play, not very good scoring. Hongkong's batting was expected to be good for at least 110 an hour and at the present time they want 160 per hour if they hope to win.

Pearce opened up however and when Tucker sent him three leg balls in one over he put them all into the H.K.C.C. tent and 60 was hoisted. Hennessy went on at the Naval Yard end and sent down an over of balls on the off which Davies only looked at.

The Singapore fielding was very fine and was keeping the runs down. Griffin had his field very well placed especially on the off and Pearce's favourite shot never got more than one run.

Hennessy was difficult to score from and almost bowled Davies twice. A single past point by Pearce from Brown brought 70 up with exactly half an hour to go and Davies seemed content to make singles short of mid-on.

Hennessy continued to worry Davies and he played very late to a fast ball and was caught by Claxton after almost missing it. Hancock followed and Pearce played the first ball of the next over from Brown for a single thus getting his half century amid loud and prolonged applause. Hancock made a single from the last ball of the over and then faced Hennessy at the other end. He did not risk anything, yet seemed to have no difficulty in playing the bowler and made a pretty late cut for a single off the last ball of the over and Pearce again faced Brown. He hit him for 1 past mid off add 2 past point to bring the total up to 80 and then put a lovely 4 into the club tent. With the next ball he was clean bowled. The ball from Brown came in from the off, kept low and got the leg stump. Pearce's score of 56 was his usual finished display and without a blemish. If anyone had stayed with him the score might easily have been doubled.

Major Edwards joined the Hongkong Captain and found Hennessy keeping a wonderful length as almost impossible to score from. The Shanghai fielding prevented Hancock getting several fours but he played a beauty along the carpet into the Governor's tent. Holmes-Brown was now taken off and Riches took his place. Claxton was keeping wicket splendidly and was deservedly applauded for some balls he took well on the leg side from the new bowler. A deep leg fielder for the visitors saved many runs at this stage when both Hancock and Edwards were hitting in this direction. Hennessy was coming off the pitch very quickly and Hancock fell a victim to a ball coming in from off with the score at 95. Farthing was sent in to partner Edwards and made a single to leg off the last ball of the over, thus coming in to face Riches for the last over. He played forward to the last ball and was out L.b.w. the score looking very bad for the home side 96-6-1 with most of the best batsmen out. Wodehouse joined Edwards at the wicket and made a lucky single over the wicket keeper's head after which Edwards brought up the 100 with a good boundary past the bowler. He successfully finished the over and Hongkong were 101.

The Singapore team put up a much better batting show than was expected and are at present in a very comfortable position. The batting was good and except for the fact that at times it was very slow it compares favourably with anything so far seen. Claxton is said to be their best bat and Hongkong were lucky to get rid of him for 18 runs when he looked set. He was more cautious than usual, but showed some pretty strokes on the leg side and past mid off. Riches who had the good fortune to be missed before he had made 10 batted splendidly and was successful in breaking the bowling. He played both Bird and Davies with confidence but took few liberties with the bowling. Holmes-Brown the other Singapore batsman who got a half-century is a stylish bat and made his runs all round the wicket.

Martin also impressed me and I thought he was going to make a score also. In fact the home side were lucky to get rid of him when they did. Rhodes is the hitter of the side and he had a short but merry innings for a useful 29. He hit out at everything and was fortunate to put the ball up several times just short of the fieldman. The wicket was much harder than during the first match and Davies was coming up quite a lot. The large contribution by Mr. Extras is principally due to balls from Davies behaving unexpectedly, although I did not think Franks kept wicket nearly so well as against Shanghai. He hurt a finger in the first match and this handicapped him severely, indeed it was very plucky of him to stand up to the wicket to the fast bowler. The batsmen in difficulties and they scored very slowly off his bowling. Wodehouse worked desperately hard. He sent down 14 overs during the very hottest part of the day and it knocked him up so that he required a rest in the pavilion after tiffin.

Sayer was put on at the end of the innings and got rid of the last three batsmen quickly, again showing how indispensable a slow bowler is to any side. The fielding of the Hongkong side was good and had by turns. In the slips it was good and also Pearce, Turner and Bagnall did well but the others especially Sayer were at times poor. Farthing's missed catch cost his side 50 runs; but as I said before a high ball is very difficult to take on the Hongkong ground on account of the light. Turner fielding well out at square and deep leg saved scores of runs and was kept very busy. The batsmen all tried to play Bird to leg and never succeeded in hitting more than 1 run, on account of Turner's good work.

I was very disappointed with Hongkong's batting. Pearce did well and played a fine faultless innings of 56 in which there were 7 boundaries. Sayer opened very well and I thought he was going to stay, but he fell a victim to Claxton behind the wicket.

Turner began in an unusually aggressive mood and I did not think he would last long. Davies was disappointing and Hancock very unlucky. The ball which bowled Hancock got up quickly and hit him on the arm and then dropped on to the wicket. Farthing was sent in to play out time but got out l.b.w. to the second ball he received. Altogether a row seemed to have set in. Hongkong are 155 behind with 6 wickets down and among those six five of the best batsmen on the side.

Major Edwards and Wodehouse are both capable of 50 and then there are Bagnall, Franks and Bird to come. Bagnall has come off on other occasions when the hopes of the side have been low and I half expect to see him do something to pull the game out of the fire.

I don't expect the home side to equal Singapore's total but I hope to see the total in the region of 200.

The match will be played to a finish even if it takes 3 days, so there is still hope that Hongkong may win though the betting is at present against them.

In connection with V. H. Lanning's hat trick against Hongkong at Shanghai, it was performed in 1906 when he bowled MacKay, Morrell, and Stanger-Leathen and finished up with an average of 8 wickets for 11 runs.

Edwards and Wodehouse started the batting this morning with 101 on the board for 6 wickets. The batsmen began to hit immediately but Wodehouse who was expected to make a stand was well bowled by Hennessy and his place taken by Bagnall. Bagnall hit out but the bowling did not suit him and he only added 11 runs to the score. Then Franks joined Edwards and both let out at the bowling. Franks did most of the hitting and hit Holmes-Brown into Queen's Road for 6, a feat which Edwards also performed. Edwards was well held in the slips when this partnership looked like being of great use and Bird came in for last wicket. Only 2 more runs were added when Bird was caught and the innings closed for 161.

Singapore began their second innings at 11.40. Gunner and Riches faced Bird and Davies. After a careful start Gunner was caught by Hancock in the slips from Bird who was getting a lot of work on the ball. The wicket getting harder all the time suited Bird, to perfection and the new man in Claxton, who ought to know Bird's bowling, found it very difficult. Riches was clean bowled by Davies with only 6 on the board and Hongkong supporters were jubilant. Claxton, playing warily, was beaten by Bird and clean bowled with only 18 showing and a distinct rot seemed to have set in. For a long time Holmes-Brown and Martin were content to hold up their ends and try and tire the bowlers but without great success for at 12.15 Holmes-Brown was prettily caught at the wicket off Davies with the score 25 for 4 wickets. Martin succeeded in getting Davies through the slips, but the ball was well fielded by Bird at third man. Rhodes, who joined Martin, did not hit out so much as in the previous innings, but he helped to put on 20 runs in 15 minutes and 40 went up on the telegraph. Davies completely beat Martin at this stage on two occasions but just missed the wicket. Rhodes hit Bird for a four and two singles and the rot seemed to have been successfully stopped. Bird was not being hit and was taken off for Farthing whose first ball went for a leg by and his second was well hit to square leg for 4.

Hancock now tried the same game that worked so well at the end of the Singapore 1st innings and put Sayer on to bowl at Rhodes in the hope of getting him caught in the country. Rhodes was very careful with this bowler however and hit him nicely along the ground for 2 singles to cover point. After a bye Martin played Sayer hard to mid on and was splendidly held by Wodehouse and from the next ball the new batsman, Mitchell, was caught at the wicket so that Sayer was paying his way and the change of bowlers had proved a huge success. The score was now 56 for 6 wickets, a very different story from the first innings and giving Hongkong every chance of winning. Rhodes was not successful in hitting Farthing and a maiden over was the result. Then Gunner, next man in, made a single from Sayer and came to the other end to give a hard chance to the bowler who just failed to get his hand on to it. Bird having had a short rest resumed for Farthing and Rhodes hit him to the tents for 4 and then put one up at cover point just too close in for the fieldman. The last ball of the over he played hard past point amid applause and the bell rang for tiffin interval.

Five minutes late the innings resumed after tiffin, Davies going on again at the Naval Yard. Gunner placed the first ball nicely to the leg boundary and 70 was hoisted on the telegraph. Gunner, however, was completely beaten by Davies' slow ball and clean bowled, the score now reading 73-7-5. and the Singapore Captain, Griffin, who came in only last night being nicely caught in the slips from the last ball of Davies' over with the score unchanged. Bird continued from the pavilion end and after Rhodes had hit him for a single the new batsman, Hennessy faced the bowler and was soon in trouble. However he got to the other end and played an over from Davies very well, while Rhodes made a pretty 4 to leg from Bird. In the next over Hennessy played Davies hard between Edwards and Wodehouse in the slips. Both batsmen dived for the ball and it was difficult to see which caught it until Edwards threw up the ball. Nine wickets were now down for 83 runs and it looked as if Singapore's chance was over. The new arrival, Tucker, received a great ovation on playing a ball from Davies past cover for 4 and another through the slips for a similar amount, which brought the 90 up.

Rhodes continued to play Bird with great care hitting him occasionally nicely along the ground and a nice four past cover brought his own contribution up to 40. Tucker played a fast ball from Davies very late and jabbed it up in the slips to be held by Edwards, thus bringing the innings to a close for 99 runs at 2.20 p.m. Rhodes's score of 42 was the best on his side and very cleverly compiled. Without this contribution the Singapore total would have been very small indeed. He deserves great credit for playing as he did at such a critical time.

Davies bowled splendidly and was never really hit. The runs which were scored from him were mostly either fine in the slips or rather lucky snicks to leg. Bird did not bowl so well after tiffin but his wickets in the early part of the Singapore innings had a lot to do with the collapse. Hancock captained his team splendidly and it was an inspiration to put Sayer on when he did. The fielding was beautiful to watch and hardly any runs were given away.

Hongkong require 195 runs to win and have this afternoon 24 hours to try and get them. If necessary the match will be continued to-morrow. T. E. Pearce and T. B. Franks opened the innings for Hongkong.

Franks has been a success as a batsman and is a hard hitter, so that Hancock probably thought he might be useful to get runs quickly. He certainly looked like it as he played a ball beautifully over the umpire's head to the boundary and the last ball of the same over was just saved on the line at the same place. Riches was in charge of the attack with Hennessy and both were bowling well. From the first ball of Riches' over, a ball which rose more than expected, Franks was well held in the slips by Holmes-Brown having made 7 out of 8 runs for the first wicket. Edwards joined Pearce and made a lucky snick for 4 off the first ball. He hit one to mid-on and Pearce decided to run, changed his mind and had to throw himself full length on the ground to get into his crease, while the ball, smartly returned to the wicket keeper, almost ran out Edwards.

This was a narrow shave and showed that the batsmen were prepared to steal runs to try and disconcert the fielders. Riches sent down a maiden to Pearce and Hennessy a maiden to Edwards and runs were slow in coming. Edwards however at this stage hit a pretty 2 to leg from Hennessy and a hefty 6 hit over to the Club Annex off the same bowler. This brought up 20.

Riches was endeavouring to tempt the batsmen with balls outside the off-ball but they were wisely leaving them alone. Edwards was very unfortunate to get his leg before to a ball from Riches which seemed to be rather high to get the wicket and 2 wickets were down for 24 runs of which the last batsman was responsible for 13. Turner went in after Edwards just after 3 p.m. Hennessy was bowling well and Pearce could not get him away at all. He hit a leg ball from Riches however nicely to leg for 4 and a single to cover. The fielding of the visiting side was just as good as in the first innings and was preventing Pearce from scoring. Turner was playing safe and nothing would tempt him at this stage. Holmes-Brown relieved Riches and bowled to Pearce who

WRANGLER'S RETREAT.

SEBASTOPOL, Nov. 9.

Very fierce fighting, fluctuating backwards and forwards, is progressing northward of the Crimea. The Bolsheviks are endeavouring most strenuously to cut off General Wrangel from the Peninsula at the neck of it. General Wrangel's troops still hold Perekop. A decisive issue is pending.

EUROPEAN CURRENCIES.

A FRESH SPASM OF WEAKNESS.

LONDON, November 9.

A fresh spasm of weakness has developed in European currencies. The pound closed in New York at $3.35, the lowest since February. This makes the sovereign worth only 13s. 9d. In New York Continental exchanges were also demoralised. The franc sharply rose to 58.50 to the pound. This is attributed chiefly to offerings from New York, also to the reaction of trade activity in France. The lire is now 100 to the pound, while marks are five a penny.

BRITISH PRISONERS RELEASED.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 9.

Sixty-one British prisoners from Baku, naval, military and civilian have arrived at Tiflis. The British Vice-Consul stayed on at Baku to collect a few prisoners who were authorised to live in the town. An order was given to hand over Bolshevik prisoners to the authorities at Odessa.

MINERS AT WORK.

LONDON, November 8.

Fears that the thousands of miners who voted against the Government proposals, especially South Wales, would refuse to return to work have not materialised, and to-day work was in full swing throughout the coalfields of the country. The railways have also resumed their normal services.

DICTATOR OF THE UKRAINE.

LONDON, November 8.

A Berlin message from Lember states that General Pablenko, Commander-in-Chief of the Ukrainians has taken prisoner Petlura and proclaimed himself dictator of the Ukraine. He has put his himself at the disposal of General Skoropadski.

hit him to cover and to a splendid off drive along the ground square leg for singles and 40 was signalled after just an hour's play. Hennessy beat Pearce twice but could not hit the wicket and the first boundary for a long time was made by Turner off Brown past point. An appeal for l.b.w. against Turner seemed too high and he survived. The field was splendidly placed and many runs were being saved on the off, practically all the scoring being from singles. Pearce however had
